

Q Nothing unusual?

A No, sir.

Q The maid Louise Geist, Will, says that when you came downstairs on Friday morning you said to her that something terrible happened last night; "don't tell Frances."

A I don't remember that, sir.

Q Do you remember reading that in the paper?

A I remember that testimony that they had over here.

Q Of course; you heard it.

A Don't you remember?

Q That's right.

A When she was on the stand that time.

Q Yes; and you say you have no recollection of having said that?

A No, sir.

Q You mean by that that you would not say you didn't say it but you don't recall having said it?

A I don't recall, no, sir; I wouldn't take my oath I didn't say it at all; I just simply can't remember it; but these little things after four years are perfectly awful. I don't want to appear either to be a dummy or trying to withhold anything and it is just like now, - this, of course, is not for the record at all,
